

EPA Associates Programme

Empowering professionals to achieve their business dreams through strategic partnership and support.

Two Pathways to Partnership

EPA Corporation offers a flexible associates system designed to support professionals in achieving their business goals. Our programme provides two distinct pathways, each tailored to different professional needs and aspirations.

Commission-Based Work

Receive contracted work directly from EPA Corporation with agreed compensation for specific projects and deliverables.

Independent Business Development

Develop and sell your own services under EPA's established brand, benefiting from corporate credibility and support.

Pathway 1: Commission-Based Work

EPA Corporation specialises in timber traceability, life cycle assessment (LCA) verification, and consultancy services for timber and management systems. Associates receive business outsourcing contracts to perform these specialised services.

Timber Traceability

Track and verify the origin and journey of timber products through comprehensive documentation and verification processes.

LCA Verification

Conduct thorough life cycle assessments to evaluate environmental impact and sustainability credentials.

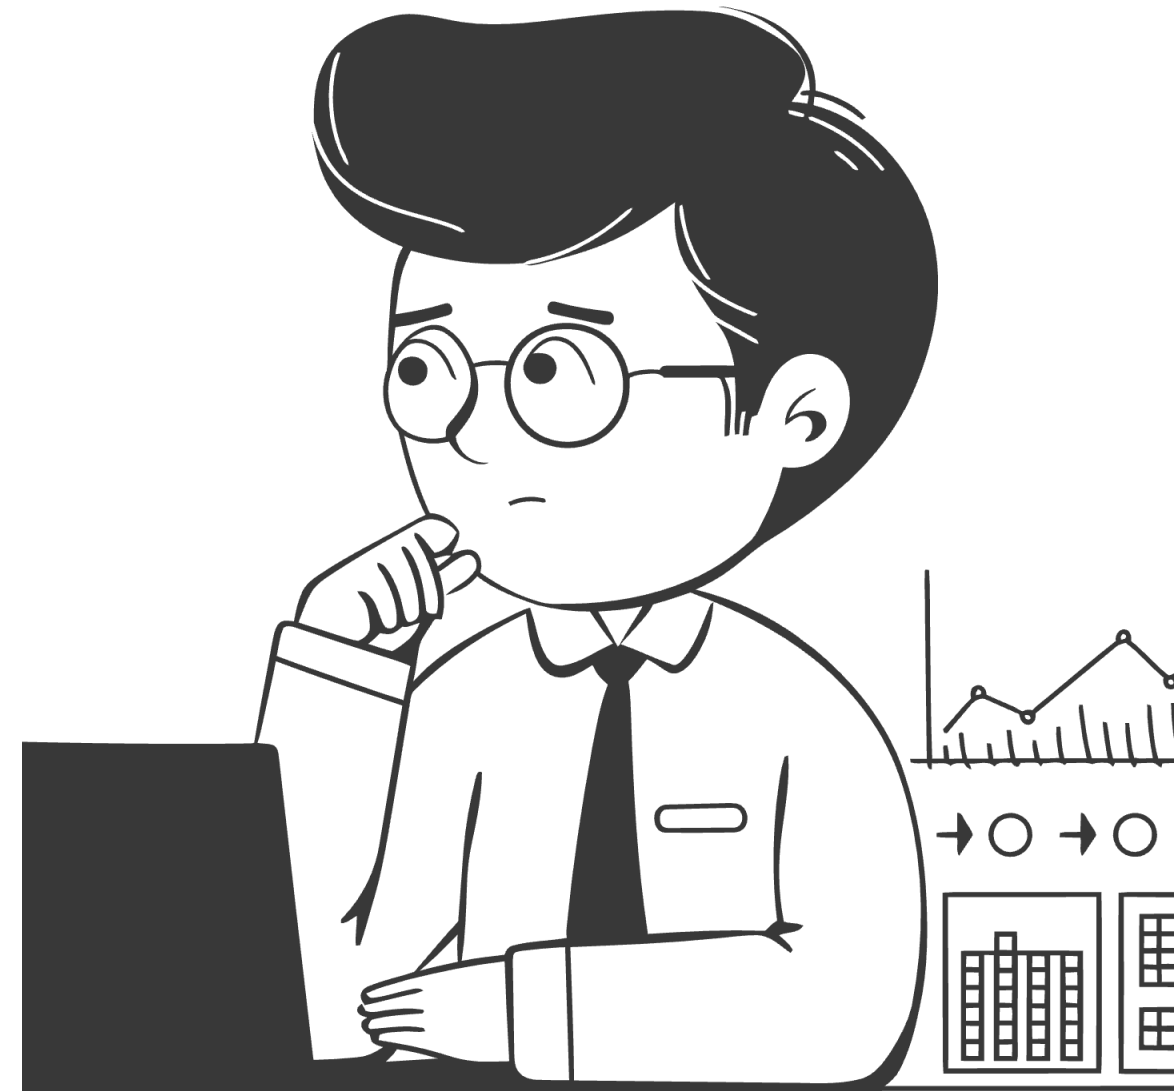

Management Consultancy

Provide expert guidance on timber management systems and organisational best practices.

Pathway 2: Independent Business Development

Associates can develop their own services and sell them under EPA's established corporate framework. This approach provides significant advantages over operating independently.

Whilst operating independently might seem appealing, individual practitioners face substantial challenges that can hinder business success and growth potential.

Challenges of Independent Operation

Business Risk Exposure

Individual practitioners must bear all business risks personally, including financial liability, legal exposure, and operational uncertainties without corporate protection.

Limited Corporate Credibility

Low creditworthiness makes it difficult to secure contracts with established enterprises, as companies prefer working with recognised corporate entities.

Market Perception Barriers

Unfortunately, national or ethnic credibility factors can influence sales opportunities, creating additional obstacles for individual practitioners....

From Ideas to Reality

Even brilliant ideas struggle to materialise without proper support. Many talented professionals find their innovative concepts never reach fruition or fail to secure contracts due to structural barriers.

EPA's associates programme bridges this gap, transforming potential into tangible business success through established corporate infrastructure and credibility.

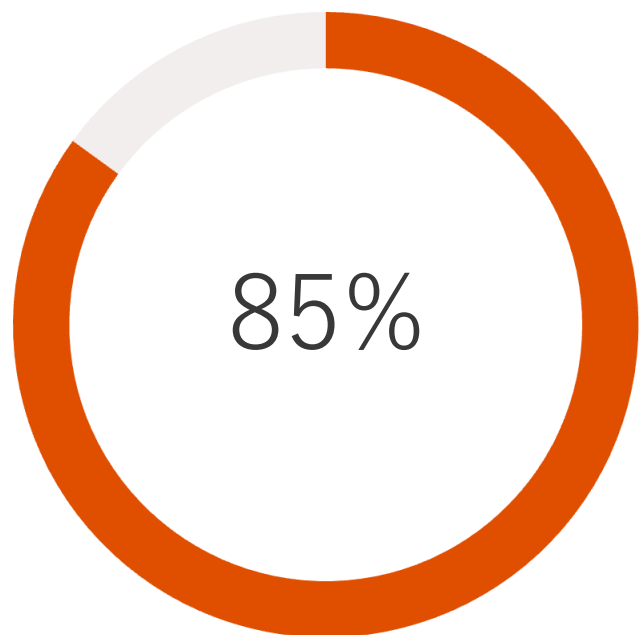

Equal Partnership Philosophy

EPA recognises associates as equal partners in advancing business objectives. We believe that supporting talented individuals with strong ideas and sales capabilities represents genuine social contribution.

"Associates are equal partners with EPA Corporation in advancing our shared business vision. Your success is our success."
